

TUPLASALAMI/ PIZZA TIME

For two or more players.

For every two players after the first two, print another set of slice cards. So one set for two players, two sets for 3-4 players, three sets for 5-6 players and so on.

THEME: You are hungry and want pizza. Fast, so that it's still warm. But not any kind of pizza.

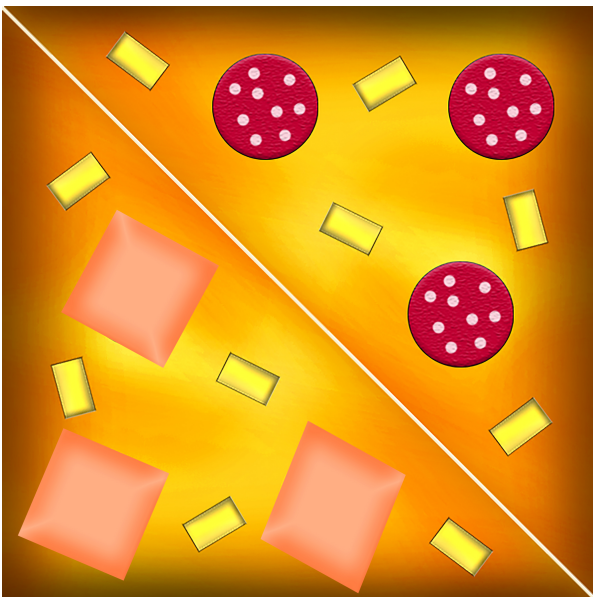

INGREDIENTS: Printed pizza slices, pizza box, scissors, glue (Lasthourofam H), group of friends (E2+)

NOTE: Texts on slices are in Finnish, so here are also the translations for those texts.

GOAL: To be the first one to collect all pizza slices for a specific kind of pizza.

Unfortunately, in this FGJX last hour-version "only" two kinds of pizza are available: Hawaii (ham-pineapple) and Salami. But there's lots of tasty puns and warm homage included with your order.

Here are the slices you try to collect and match:

Does pineapple belong to pizza? What do you think?

This game tries to be environmentally friendly and support recycling where possible, so here's how you can prepare your own game! Print the game's pizza slices (PDF) and attach them to a pizza box of the pizza you just ate! Possibly while jamming? Here's a fine example:

These are both sides of the same slide. So as you can see, there's an awesome possibility to include your own bad puns and jokes into the game.

RULES:

Preparing the game:

So, after you have printed, cut and glued your slices, your pizzas are ready to be eaten! Or played, whichever you prefer. Note that the slices (game pieces) are triangular! In a random order, place them into the shape of a pizza box (or as commonly known, a square), pizza side down, so that with the backsides from real pizza boxes you will have a... kind of a... pizza box - right there, where you can then take pizza slices (draw cards). Put additional slices into a pile, where you take replacements for the slices you pick.

COURSE OF A TURN:

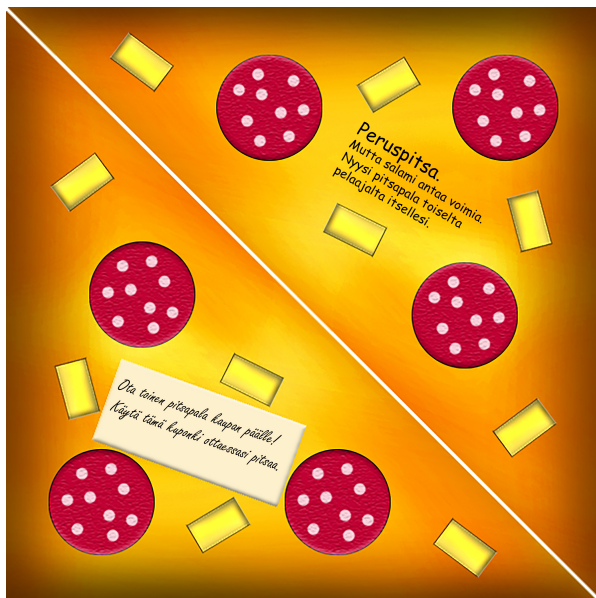

At the beginning of your turn, pick a slice from the box and put it into your hand (basically, draw a card). Do not show it to other players. Replace a slice with a new one. If there's no cards in the replacement deck, just recycle and shuffle trash (discard pile) into a new delicious pile of slices! You may then use your pizza slices according to what they say.* After using, put the slice into the trash (discard) pile.

If there's no trash pile, the first slice to be thrown into trash forms a new one. After you've had enough pizza (used enough cards), end your turn and it's next player's turn to take a slice.

* In case you wonder how a pizza slice can say anything: you never know what's gonna happen during those desperate, tired hours of jamming 24/7. Also, the pizzeria may have left notes.

However, here's some clarification:

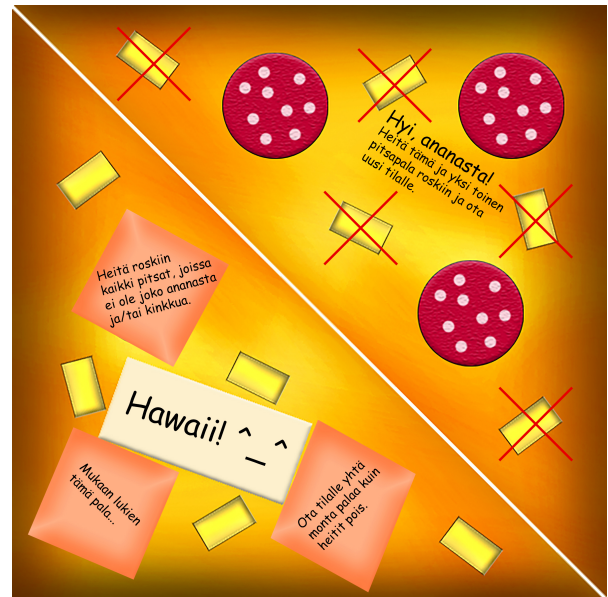

Peruspitsa:

"Basic pizza. But salami gives you power. Steal a pizza slice from another player to yourself."
So basically, draw a card at random from another player's hand.

(Pizzeria's note)

"Take another slice of pizza into the bargain! Use this coupon while taking pizza."
So you draw an additional card, but only when drawing a card. Oh yes, feel free to combo out!

Hyi, ananasta!

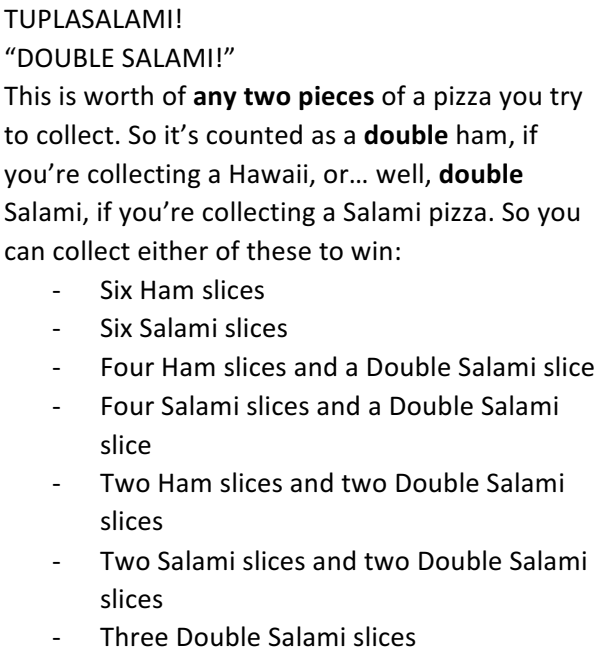

"Yuck, pineapple! Throw this and one other slice of pizza into the trash and pick a new slice."

So discard this and one other slice card to draw a card.

Hawaii! ^_^

"Throw into trash all pizzas (meaning pizza slices, sorry for the typo!) that don't have either pineapple and/or ham. Including this slice... Pick as many slices as you threw away."

So discard this card and all cards in your hand that don't have either pineapple or ham depicted in their art, then draw as many cards - including this card, so at least one!

When you pick Double Salami from the box, before putting it into your hand, reveal it and shout out loud “TUPLASALAMI”/“DOUBLE SALAMI” (depending of who you are playing with) to steal two slices at random from another player’s hand. If there are not enough slices in one player’s hand, steal the other slice from another player, if there is. If there’s not, pick it from the pizza box, then replace the one you took.

So you throw into the trash (discard) all slices from your hand. Reveal this card immediately you pick it from the box (draw it).

Winner is the first player who manages to collect a full eight slices of a specific pizza into their hand – those slices with no text. So if you have all of them, reveal them to other players, so they can see that you are the first one to get a full, warm, tasty pizza! You can also play a version with six slices. Or four, however you like.

Bon appétit!